History

PTP is developed in Scandinavia for the use in business matters. The strength of a Scandinavian analysis tool, based in business matters, is a high degree of recognizability in relations to working tasks and problems; hence, an attentive and understandable analysis tool.

Quality

As the use of occupational psychological tests depends on the quality of the tool and the skills of the user, People Test Systems aim to have 'The best users in the world'.

Recent studies show that many people do not get the required yield from the test tools that they use as they do not have sufficient skills. Through extensive certification and the possibility of further certification and individual supervision, we ensure that our users are properly equipped and that the analysis is used to its optimum, benefiting the user, the company, and the person tested.

The Research and Quality Team

To ensure the quality in the analysis, we have appointed a Research and Quality Team, consisting of some of the most skilled people within tests in Denmark. By cooperating with some of the best in Denmark, we secure that our analysis are serious and well-tested and by that among the best on the market.

User applicability

Even though the PTP is a most profound analysis, it has a high degree of user applicability. The qualities are easily understandable and can be related to the everyday of the user in question.

Ethics

Ethics is one of the cornerstones in the way People Test Systems use psychological tests and our current focus is on the fact that our users apply our analysis according to the guidelines, elaborated by Knowledge Centre for Professional Person Evaluations.

We are active members of the centre which is a member organisation, consisting of large, Danish companies and test suppliers, planning a strategy of how to ensure that everybody who are in contact with person evaluations are treated decently.

Language

At present, the PTP is available in Danish, Swedish, Norwegian, Icelandic, German, English, Russian, Finnish, and Lettish.

Further languages are under development.
